France meet Belgium on Tuesday and England tackle Croatia on Wednesday. On Saturday there's the clash nobody will want to feature in, the third place play-off; and then on Sunday, it's the showpiece final.Given the way in which this tournament has gone, fans across the globe will be braced for more drama in the remaining matches. To ensure none of the action is missed, here are the broadcast details for the games and a look ahead to the two semi-finals.Semi-Final Schedule (BST)Tuesday, July 10 (7 p.m.): Belgium vs. FranceWednesday, July 11 (7 p.m.): England vs. CroatiaTV Info: BBC One or ITV (UK), Fox or Fox Sports (U.S.)Live Stream: BBC iPlayer (UK), ITV Hub (UK), Fox Sports Go (U.S.)PreviewShaun Botterill/Getty ImagesWhile both England and Croatia have talented footballers in their ranks, few of their fans would have anticipated either side making a run this deep into the tournament. Now they're one game away from an unlikely final appearance.Croatia have come through the knockout rounds the hard way, as they won two penalty shootouts after draws with Denmark and Russia. In both matches, Ivan Rakitic is the man who has slotted home the winning kick. As noted below, he has showcased incredible composure in the two high-pressure situations:B/R Football @brfootballIvan Rakitic—so relaxed under pressure □□ will represent a step up for Croatia, though, as head coach Gareth Southgate has managed to cultivate a fantastic spirit among his squad. In their 2-0 win over Sweden on Saturday, they showed stability, strength and an edge in the final third.England overcame Sweden to make the semis.Jean Catuffe/Getty ImagesThe team has so many different ways to get the better of an opponent. If coping with the likes of Harry Kane, Jesse Lingard and Dele Alli wasn't enough, England have also become set-piece specialists in Russia.As noted after Harry Maguire's goal against Sweden, they are so dangerous when it comes to dead-ball situations:OptaJoe @OptaJoe80% - Eight of England's 10 goals at the 2018 World Cup have been scored via set pieces (80%). Weaponry. #ENG #SWEENG #WorldCupBy the time England and Croatia take to the field, they will know who they will be playing in the final, as Belgium and France go head-to-head in another appealing contest on Tuesday.The Red Devils were exceptional in their quarter-final victory over Brazil, in which a devastating first-half performance was enough for them to win 2-1.Belgium celebrate their win over Brazil.Kevin C. Cox/Getty ImagesManager Roberto Martinez deserves immense credit for the manner in which he tweaked the side, with the trio of Romelu Lukaku, Eden Hazard and Kevin De Bruyne running riot on the counter-attack for the Red Devils. They were then able to withstand a barrage of Brazil pressure late on.Samuel Luckhurst of the Manchester Evening News commented on the sensational 45 minutes that effectively won the game for Belgium:Samuel Luckhurst @samuelluckhurstThat was one of the best attacking halves of football in a World Cup knockout tie this century from #BEL. World-class from Lukaku, De Bruyne and Hazard. Neymar's been cowed by Fellaini. #BRABELNext up for Martinez's men will be another complete outfit in the shape of France, a team that has been growing into the competition.While Didier Deschamps' men haven't been particularly fluid in Russia, aside from their 4-3 win over Argentina, they have showcased all the attributes needed to go all the way. They have leaders, defensive strength, midfield giants and so much potency in the final third.After Martinez's tactical masterplan worked so well against Brazil, France will be wary of giving their opponents too much space to work with on the break. Meanwhile, given the frailties Belgium's defence has shown in Russia, the likes of Kylian Mbappe and Antoine Griezmann will be confident of doing some damage of their own. Bastian Schweinsteiger and Lukas Podolski of Germany celebrate with the World Cup trophy after defeating Argentina 1-0 in extra time during the 2014 FIFA World Cup Brazil Final match on July 13, 2014 in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.
